Costa Brava

The 200 km of coastline that stretch from Portbou to Blanes are 200 km of unforgettable sensations.

Nature plays a crucial role, gifting the region with spectacular spots like Cap de Creus, Aiguamolls de l'Empordà, and the Medes Islands.

Undoubtedly, the most iconic scenery on the Costa Brava is its beaches, its crystal-clear water and golden sand, coves tucked away among the steep cliffs and quaint fishing villages.

But many other surprises and one-of-a-kind attractions are also waiting to be discovered, like the Bay of Roses, Banyoles Lake, and the botanical gardens that dot the coast.

The Costa Brava is landscape, culture and cuisine. Home to the Greco-Roman ruins of Empúries, medieval villages, the legacy of Girona's Jewish Quarter, the pottery tradition of La Bisbal d'Empordà, and the impact of local artists like surrealist Salvador Dalí, as well as cuisine and local products from the sea and land like anchovies, oil, and wine, the Costa Brava is a veritable amalgam of experiences as diverse as they are exciting.

There are few places in the world home to so many scenic treasures, charming villages, and cultural attractions as this corner of the Mediterranean

Girona Pyrenees

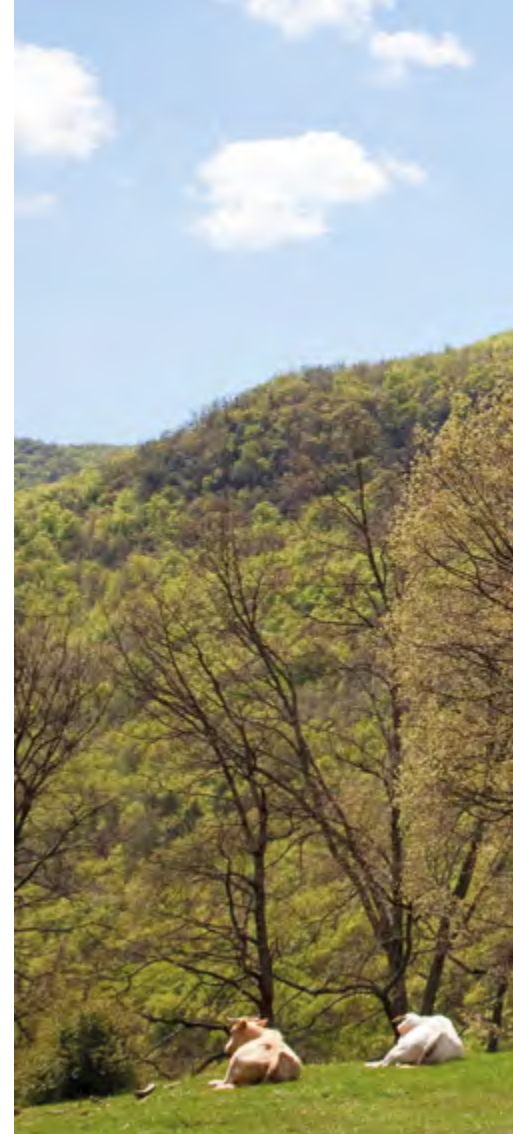

The Girona Pyrenees is home to peaks that rise nearly three thousand meters above sea level, peaceful valleys dotted with mountain villages, ancient volcanoes covered with lush vegetation, and an immense beech wood that turns surprising colours with the seasons.

There are large monasteries and small rural churches that safeguard the region's spirit of Romanesque art, and villages that still preserve jewels of medieval architecture. Modernisme and contemporary art also abound with pictorial and architectural works by world-famous artists.

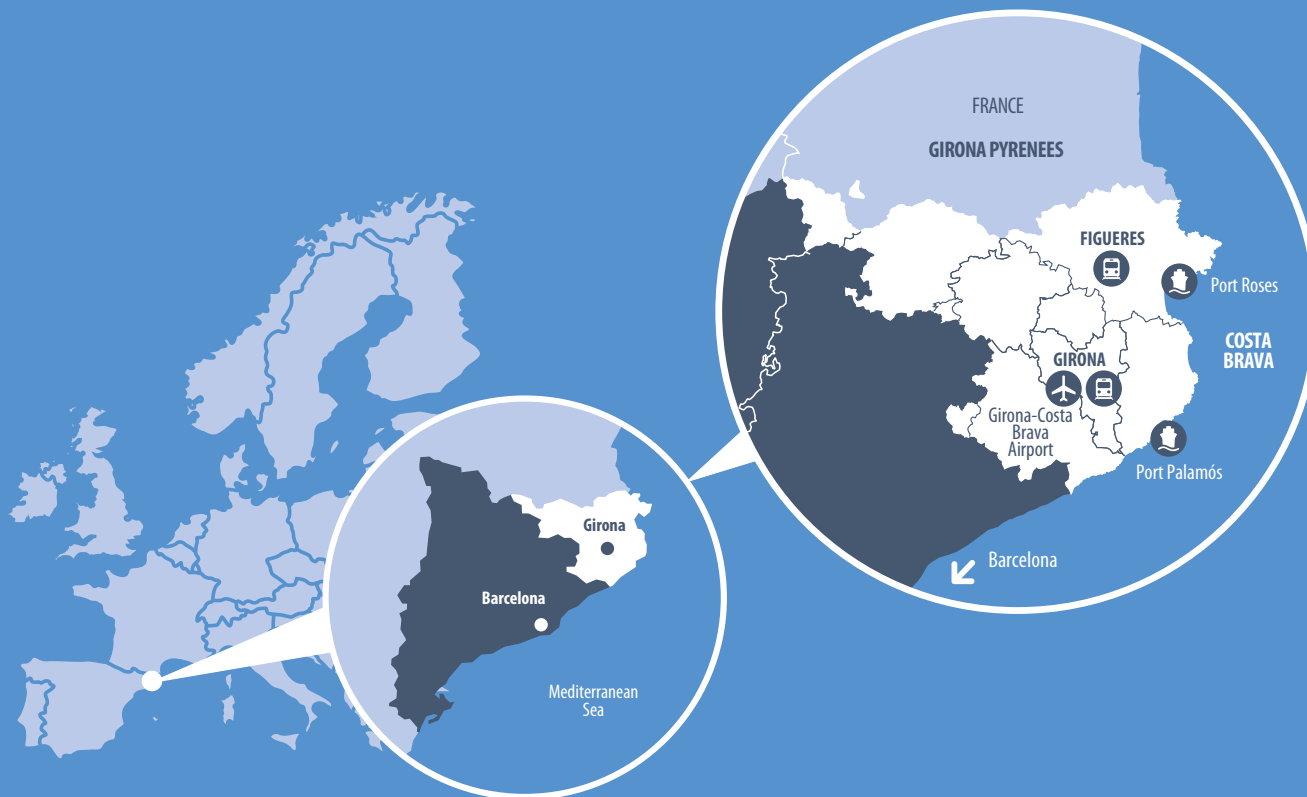

Mountain sport and adventure enthusiasts find the Girona Pyrenees the perfect place to visit year-round, and in winter skiers can take to the slopes at the Pyrenees' most famous ski resorts.

All this and more can be seen and experienced in the Girona Pyrenees, a land that invites you to explore and fall in love with everything it has to offer.

Nature shows off her charms mere kilometres from the beach with stunning mountains, valleys, rivers, lakes, and forests.

Location

Located in the northeast of the Iberian Peninsula, the province of Girona enjoys a strategic geographic location and a full range of infrastructures to help visitors easily reach the region and comfortably get around once here.

For overland travel, there is the high-speed train, with stations in Girona and Figueres, which connects with cities in Spain and France. By road, visitors can take the AP7 motorway that crosses the province from north to south and links up with the C-25 Eix Transversal (Transversal Arterial Road) that crosses Catalonia from east to west.

A wide range of cruise options are available to sea-goers, in addition to numerous marinas and yacht clubs.

The Girona-Costa Brava airport regularly receives charter planes and the Barcelona airport is just an hour away.

Easy to reach. Easy to get around. And easy to connect with the myriad of experiences that await you in the Costa Brava and Girona Pyrenees.

Gastronomy

Costa Brava and Girona Pyrenees.
The best place to nourish body and soul.

The Mediterranean Sea and the mountains together promise an extraordinary culinary and wine experience. The extravagance of combining chicken with lobster, stuffing sweet sausages or filling Girona apples with meat reflects the diversity of ways in which to enjoy the region's wines and Argudell olive oil.

Farmers, winegrowers, livestock breeders, fishermen and beekeepers in the Costa Brava and the Girona Pyrenees work hard to preserve the environment that defines us, passing on the ingredients to other artisans, including some of the best cheesemakers, winemakers and chefs.

From the revolution started by Ferran Adrià, El Bulli's culinary genius, to the sophistication and excellence at El Celler de Can Roca, the Costa Brava and Girona Pyrenees is the Spanish region with the most Michelin stars among its restaurants, each with its own unique personality. It is worth noting that El Bulli reinvented itself as elBulli1846, the museum of the restaurant that changed the paradigm of modern cuisine.

The region's landscape is dominated by fields of olive trees and hundred-year-old vines and the oil mills and wineries produce wines and olive oils that provide the perfect pairing and accompaniment to any meal.

Companies in the Costa Brava and Girona Pyrenees offer experiences to see and savour our gastronomy, including cooking workshops, gastro-botanic walks and fishing tourism, among others.

A revolutionary, authentic region that must be experienced.

You can discover the secrets of winemaking at different wineries, go wine tasting, visit a wine museum, enjoy the beneficial properties of wine therapy, and even participate in the VÍVID wine festival in April. vivid.costabrava.org

The internationally recognised and awarded DO Empordà wines express the essence of the Mediterranean and pair perfectly with our world-renowned cuisine.

Everyone knows that wine is a treat for the senses. So did the Greeks, who planted the first vineyards in Empordà.
